

KORE.AI COMPETITIVE INTELLIGENCE

Competitive Signal Report

Topic: Enterprise agentic AI & contact-center AI (CCAI) · Window: last 72h · Wednesday, 24 June 2026 · 22:50 IST
Prepared by Kore.ai Competitive Intelligence

Bottom line: Five9's launch of Voice AI Agents and Salesforce's Agentforce Commerce push underscore the growing importance of agentic AI in customer experience, but both vendors' approaches are vulnerable to Kore.ai's strengths in determinism, cost-per-outcome, and omnichannel capabilities.

WHAT MATTERS THIS RUN

Three signals that matter

Five9 Enters Voice AI Market

WHAT HAPPENED
(2026-06-24) Five9 launched its Voice AI Agents to replace traditional contact center IVR systems, as reported by CX Today and Directors Club News. WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
This move highlights Five9's attempt to expand its offerings, but its seat-based pricing model and limited voice capabilities create an opening for Kore.ai to emphasize its cost-per-outcome approach and true omnichannel support.

Salesforce Expands Agentforce

WHAT HAPPENED
(2026-06-24) Salesforce announced Agentforce Commerce, pushing agentic AI from hype to retail revenue reality, as reported by The Futurum Group and Techzine Global. WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
Salesforce's expansion of Agentforce highlights the growing importance of agentic AI in customer experience, but its pricing complexity and consumption-based model create an opportunity for Kore.ai to emphasize its predictable cost-per-outcome approach.

ServiceNow Enhances Agent Platform

WHAT HAPPENED
(2026-06-24) Inspira became a full-spectrum ServiceNow partner, rolling out its own AI Control Tower, as reported by iTWire. WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
ServiceNow's enhanced Agent Platform and partnership with Inspira demonstrate its commitment to agentic AI, but its ITSM-centric approach and limited voice capabilities create an opening for Kore.ai to emphasize its customer experience focus and omnichannel support.
