

KORE.AI COMPETITIVE INTELLIGENCE

Competitive Signal Report

Topic: Enterprise agentic AI & contact-center AI (CCAI) · Window: last 72h · Monday, 03 August 2026 · 21:14 IST
Prepared by Kore.ai Competitive Intelligence

Bottom line: Competitors are aggressively pushing their agentic AI narratives, with ServiceNow and Salesforce highlighting platform integration and broad enterprise reach. However, their reliance on consumption-based pricing and inherent platform lock-in presents a significant opportunity for Kore.ai's predictable, outcome-based pricing and provider-agnostic approach.

WHAT MATTERS THIS RUN

Three signals that matter

ServiceNow Unifies Agentic AI Under "Otto"

WHAT HAPPENED
ServiceNow announced the unification of its AI offerings, including the recent acquisition of Moveworks, under the new "Otto" brand, aiming to deliver a single, integrated agentic AI experience across its platform for both employee and customer-facing use cases. This move consolidates their AI strategy and emphasizes platform integration as a key differentiator. (2026-08-03) AD HOC NEWS WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
ServiceNow's "Otto" narrative reinforces the trend of platform consolidation, but also highlights their ITSM-centric origins and reliance on third-party voice solutions, creating an opening for Kore.ai's purpose-built, omnichannel CX platform and native voice capabilities.

Salesforce Agentforce Drives $1B ARR with Pricing Flexibility

WHAT HAPPENED
Salesforce reported that Agentforce has achieved $1.2 billion in ARR, with a significant portion driven by flexible pricing models that include consumption-based "Flex Credits" and per-user SKUs, indicating strong adoption despite past pricing model changes. (2026-08-01) Salesforce WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
While Salesforce touts ARR growth, their continued reliance on consumption-based credits and multiple pricing models creates customer anxiety around predictability and TCO, an area where Kore.ai's clear, outcome-based pricing and per-agent cost attribution offer a distinct advantage.

ServiceNow Expands European Reach, Bolstering AI Narrative

WHAT HAPPENED
ServiceNow is intensifying its European distribution efforts, aiming to strengthen its market presence and capitalize on its AI-driven growth narrative across the continent. This expansion signals a strategic push to broaden its enterprise footprint beyond its traditional strongholds. (2026-08-03) AD HOC NEWS WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
ServiceNow's European expansion underscores the global demand for AI solutions, but their ITSM-centric approach may not fully address the nuanced needs of enterprise CX. Kore.ai can leverage its proven CX-specific analyst leadership and true omnichannel capabilities to differentiate in these markets.

ON THE RADAR

Watch for

- Continued integration of Moveworks into ServiceNow's "Otto" platform and its impact on their CX narrative.
- Salesforce's ongoing efforts to clarify and stabilize Agentforce pricing models amidst customer feedback.
- Analyst commentary on the effectiveness of platform consolidation strategies in the enterprise AI space.

SO WHAT — DO THIS NOW

Recommended actions

- Arm Sales with messaging that highlights Kore.ai's predictable, outcome-based pricing and TCO advantages over consumption-based models like Salesforce's Flex Credits.
- Reinforce Kore.ai's position as a pure-play, CX-native platform with true omnichannel capabilities, contrasting this with ServiceNow's ITSM-centric origins and reliance on third-party voice.
- Continue to emphasize Kore.ai's strong analyst validation in Conversational AI for Customer Service (Gartner, Forrester) as a key differentiator against platform players with broader, but less specialized, AI offerings.
- Develop talking points that address the potential complexity and hidden costs associated with large platform AI integrations, positioning Kore.ai as a more focused and transparent solution for CX automation.
