Competitive Signal Report

Topic: Enterprise agentic AI & contact-center AI (CCAI) · Window: last 72h · Sunday, 09 August 2026 · 20:06 IST
Prepared by Kore.ai Competitive Intelligence

Bottom line: Competitors are pushing AI capabilities, but often as add-ons to existing platforms or with pricing models that create customer anxiety. Kore.ai's integrated, purpose-built agentic platform with transparent, outcome-aligned pricing remains a key differentiator against these fragmented and potentially costly approaches.

Five9 AI Revenue Surges, Highlighting Seat-Model Vulnerability

WHAT HAPPENED
(2026-08-07) Five9 reported a 78% jump in AI revenue, beating Q2 guidance, as it continues to pivot towards "Agentic CX." CMSWire WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
This rapid AI revenue growth for Five9, a CCaaS incumbent, underscores the market's demand for AI capabilities. However, their continued reliance on a seat-based model, even with AI add-ons, creates an exploitable weakness around TCO predictability as AI deflection increases. Kore.ai's ABL and outcome-aligned pricing offer a more stable and transparent economic model.

Salesforce's continued investment in Agentforce, including voice capabilities and government certifications, signals their intent to compete more aggressively in the CX space. However, their platform's inherent lock-in with Data Cloud and complex, evolving pricing models present an opportunity for Kore.ai to highlight its provider-agnostic approach and transparent, outcome-based TCO.

Sierra Lands CarMax, Signaling Broadening Enterprise Land Grab in Conversational AI

WHAT HAPPENED
(2026-08-06) Sierra has secured CarMax as a customer, indicating a widening enterprise adoption trend for conversational AI platforms. CMSWire WHAT IT MEANS FOR KORE.AI
This win for Sierra, a well-funded startup, demonstrates the market's appetite for advanced conversational AI. Kore.ai can counter by emphasizing its proven enterprise-grade platform, extensive analyst validation as a Leader in Conversational AI for Customer Service, and its ability to deliver deterministic, governed AI solutions, particularly for regulated industries where Sierra's autonomous LLM agents may raise concerns.
